

2 and 3 April 2019

Quality improvement in general practice

Data quality workshop

Good data quality is a powerful resource for general practice that can be used to drive improvement activities leading to improved clinical care and health outcomes. This training will provide participants strategies for implementing sustainable processes to improve data quality in their general practice.

Event details

Train IT Medical's Katrina Otto will facilitate an interactive data quality session to assist participants to develop a planned approach to practice data improvements.

Participants will be provided with practical steps and case studies to develop a data quality improvement plan, addressing a priority area specific to their general practice needs.

This workshop will incorporate case studies, scenario-based training, and individual and group activities to consolidate learnings.

Learning outcomes

Participants will be provided with practical strategies on how to:

- recognise and understand the importance of data quality in their practice
- learn to interpret practice data
- use data to identify and track areas for improvement
- develop a data quality plan and practical steps for their practice.
