Are you an Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander general practice registrar looking to expand your horizons and understand more about the GP training program and the Applied Knowledge Test and Key Feature Problem exams?

Would you like to have the opportunity to spend time with your colleagues in an informal setting to learn about the RACGP's written exams and how to study effectively? If so, don't miss this opportunity to be part of RACGP's 2018 'Yagila Wadamba': Learn to Heal.

This two day program has been created just for you. To support you, not only in performing your best in the written exams but to ensure that you thrive throughout your career in general practice.

Our presenters will offer you excellent guidance on how to best tackle exam questions, providing you the best available resources and an overview of the most effective study techniques, including their personal accounts, having sat the written exam.

We understand that the written exams are only part of this picture. In conjunction with the Australian Indigenous Doctor's Association (AIDA) and the Indigenous General Practice Registrars Network (IGPRN), we will be seeking your advice on how we can further support you through the GP training program.

This workshop offers a safe space to hear each other's stories, share and understand culture and family with your peers. Whatever future you envision, we hope to help you reach it, and this workshop will offer guidance across a range of areas including how to manage stress effectively and ensure a work/life balance.

So if you are looking for excellence in GP training, exam performance and how to manage the stress, please RSVP by emailing aboriginalhealth@racgp.org.au or contact us on 03 8699 0490 if you require further information.

Places are limited, so please register early in order to avoid disappointment.
