The Melbourne Clinic

You are invited to attend this CPD Activity

Event Date	Wednesday, 29 July 2020
Time	7:00pm to 8:30pm
Location	A link to this live webinar will be emailed to participants following registration
Speakers	Professor Chee NG – Psychiatrist Healthscope Chair of Psychiatry and Director of the Professorial Unit at The Melbourne Clinic Dr Joel King – Psychiatrist Mr Aaron Jones – Mental Health & AOD Manager Eastern Melbourne Primary Health Network (EMPHN)

This interactive update has been developed with a GP focus in order to expand the understanding of the mental health impact of COVID-19, and the assessment and management issues for patients presenting with psychological symptoms associated with the COVID-19 pandemic.

This activity will address key clinical challenges faced by primary care providers and assist them in formulating communication strategies, whilst establishing their role within a broader multidisciplinary team.

Learning Outcomes:

By the end of this activity, GPs will be able to:

- Discuss the broad mental health impacts of COVID-19 on the community
- Identify the mental health problems in at-risk populations during the pandemic
- Evaluate the clinical presentations of mental health problems linked to COVID-19
- Apply the general principles of mental health and psychosocial supports and interventions
- Utilise course reference material and specialist information to implement new strategies and identify effective referral pathways that ensure continuity of care of patients presenting with signs and symptoms of mental illness.
