

Register your interest to assist during crises

Can you or your clinic assist during an emergency/pandemic response?

EMPHN is updating our register of primary care providers willing to assist with community responses during an emergency/pandemic response.

During crisis responses, Primary Health Networks may be requested by government and health sector stakeholders to engage primary care providers to support response efforts, either individually or at a whole of practice level.

We invite all primary health care workers including GPs, nurses, practice administrative staff, pharmacists, allied health professionals, and others to register their interest in participating in emergency response activities.

If you would like to support your community in times of need, we invite you to join our pool of health care volunteers.

To register your interest, please complete the survey by scanning the QR code above.

Scan the QR code to register your interest.

phn
EASTERN MELBOURNE

An Australian Government Initiative